

“Pretense”

Smoke and mirrors project
the family's dreams and lies.
Within the highly polished façade
they live and believe the illusion.

Naïve to the danger,
they brace not against the truth.
Their complacency
proves fatal.

Truth brushes against them,
their pretense shatters.
Exposed and vulnerable,
they fall, broken and separate shards.

Amy E. Morgan